driven by J. W. Wallace of 908 South Palm street, Anaheim.

With her cousin, Mrs. Antony Andero, Mrs. Basabe was driving to Fuller Park to take her home. They had been shopping preparing for a celebration for Wednesday at the Basabe home on Brea road. Driving west on Commonwealth avenue the Basabe car collided with the Wallace car at the intersection of Highland avenue. The impact opened the door by the driver's seat, Mrs. Basabe was thrown out, and the car fell on her, crushing her chest, according to Mrs. Andero who was only slightly bruised. Wallace was driving south on Highland.

The body is at the McAulay and Suters funeral home pending an inquest.

Besides her husband, John Basabe, she is survived by two sons, Joseph Basabe and Felix Basabe, and a daughter, Ramona, all at home. Joseph Basabe's wife died about six months ago, Mrs. Basabe lost her mother about three months ago.
